

OLYMPIC GAMES

General Olympic Information

The modern Olympic Games, first held in Athens, Greece, in 1896, were the result of efforts by Baron Pierre de Coubertin, a French educator, to promote interest in education and culture and to foster better international understanding through love of athletics. His inspiration was the ancient Greek Olympic Games, most notable of the four Panhellenic celebrations. The games were combined patriotic, religious, and athletic festivals held every four years. The first such recorded festival was held in 776 BCE, when the Greeks began to keep their calendar by “Olympiads,” or four-year spans between the games.

Coubertin enlisted 14 nations to send athletes to the first modern Olympics. Now athletes from more than 200 nations and territories compete in the Summer Olympics. The Winter Olympic Games, started in 1924, draw competitors from about 90 countries and territories.

Symbol: Five rings or circles, linked to represent the sporting friendship of all peoples. They also symbolize five geographic areas—Africa, America, Asia, Australia, and Europe. Each ring is a different color—blue, yellow, black, green, and red—which, with the color white, represent the colors of the world’s flags.

Flag: The five-ring symbol on a plain white background.

Creed: “The most important thing in the Olympic Games is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle. The essential thing is not to have conquered but to have fought well.”

Motto: Citius, Altius, Fortius. (“Faster, higher, stronger” in Latin)

Oath: “In the name of all the competitors I promise that we shall take part in these Olympic Games, respecting and abiding by the rules which govern them, committing ourselves to a sport without doping and without drugs, in the true spirit of sportsmanship, for the glory of sport and the honor of our teams.”

Flame: The modern version of the flame was adopted in 1936. The torch used to kindle it is first lit by the sun’s rays in Olympia, Greece, then carried to the site of the Games by relays of runners. Ships and planes are used when necessary.

2018 Winter Olympic Games

Pyeongchang, South Korea, Feb. 9-25, 2018

Nearly 3,000 (2,833) athletes representing 92 nations met in Pyeongchang, South Korea, to compete in a record 102 events in 15 sports during the XXIII Olympic Winter Games Feb. 9-25, 2018. South Korea was hosting the Games for the first time since 1988, when the Summer Olympics were held in Seoul. Norway won 39 medals, including 14 gold, to top the final medal count, followed by Germany (31), Canada (29), and the U.S. (23).

Host country South Korea and estranged neighbor North Korea agreed in Jan. 2018 to march together under a unified flag in the opening ceremony and to field a unified women’s hockey team. The Intl. Olympic Committee barred Russia from competition due to a state-sponsored doping scandal; Russian athletes granted exemptions by the IOC were allowed to compete under the designation Olympic Athlete(s) from Russia (OAR).

Japanese superstar Yuzuru Hanyu became the first man to win back-to-back singles figure skating gold medals since 1952. OAR teammates Alina Zagitova and Evgenia Medvedeva claimed gold and silver, respectively, in the women’s figure skating competition. Czech star Ester Ledecká became the first woman ever to win a gold medal in two different sports at a single Winter Games, claiming the top prize in both the Alpine super-G and snowboarding’s parallel giant slalom.

Veteran U.S. snowboarder Shaun White won gold in the men’s halfpipe for the third time in his four Olympic appearances, while 17-year-old American rookie Chloe Kim claimed gold in the women’s halfpipe event. The U.S. women’s hockey team beat Canada in dramatic fashion to claim their first gold medal in the sport since the event began in 1998. U.S. Alpine skiing legend Lindsey Vonn, seeking a comeback after missing the Sochi games due to injury, settled for a bronze medal in downhill; teammate Mikaela Shiffrin claimed gold and silver in the giant slalom and Alpine combined events, respectively. The U.S. men’s curling team won gold for the first time since competition officially began in that sport in 1998.

The following six new medal events were introduced in 2018: Alpine skiing team, curling mixed doubles, snowboarding men’s/women’s big air, and speed skating men’s/women’s mass start. Two events from the 2014 Games in Sochi, snowboarding men’s/women’s parallel slalom, were eliminated.

2019 Women's NCAA Tournament: Baylor Holds Off Notre Dame

The Baylor Lady Bears held off the Notre Dame Fighting Irish to defeat the defending champion, 82-81, on Apr. 7, 2019, in the women's Division I basketball title game at Amalie Arena in Tampa, FL. Baylor held an 11-point lead at the end of the first three quarters but lost leading rebounder Lauren Cox to a knee injury late in the third. Notre Dame came back and forced a tie, but Baylor point guard Chloe Jackson, who was named the most outstanding player of the Final Four, scored twice in the last 30 seconds to hold on to the win. Lady Bears head coach Kim Mulkey claimed her third NCAA title.

World Series, 2019: Washington Nationals Win First-Ever World Series

The Washington Nationals, who joined the National League in 1969 as the Montréal Expos before moving to DC to start the 2005 season, won the first World Series in franchise history with a 6-2 victory over the Houston Astros in Game 7, Oct. 30, 2019, at Minute Maid Park in Houston, TX. Washington trailed 2-0 through six innings before Anthony Rendon, who had eight RBIs in the series, hit a solo home run off starter Zack Greinke in the seventh, and Howie Kendrick put the Nats ahead with a two-run homer. Patrick Corbin pitched three innings in relief to earn the win. The road team was victorious in each game of the seven-game series, a first in Major League Baseball history.

Stephen Strasburg recorded a pair of wins in the series and was voted World Series Most Valuable Player. Strasburg allowed a pair of runs on five hits and struck out seven in 8 1/3 innings for his second World Series win, improving his 2019 postseason record to 5-0, as the Nationals beat Houston, 7-2, Oct. 29 in Game 6. Third baseman Anthony Rendon drove in five runs for the Nats, including a two-run homer in the seventh after a controversial call at first base. Nats shortstop Trea Turner was called out for interfering with Houston first baseman Yuli Gurriel after Turner bounced an infield hit to pitcher Brad Peacock. Gurriel could not field the throw from Peacock and lost his glove as Turner reached first base and then advanced to second. The play and subsequent argument after the inning resulted in the ejection of Nationals manager Dave Martinez.

U.S. Wins 2019 Women's World Cup

The U.S. women's national soccer team won the 2019 FIFA World Cup with a 2-0 victory over Netherlands July 7, 2019, at Stade de Lyon in Lyon, France. Held scoreless for the first hour of the final, the U.S. scored in the 61st minute, a penalty-spot goal by 34-year-old standout Megan Rapinoe, followed by midfielder Rose Lavelle's low shot for a second goal less than 10 minutes later. Rapinoe, who won both the Golden Ball award as the tournament's top player and the Golden Boot award as its top scorer, gained further prominence off the pitch when video showed the Seattle Reign star proclaiming in explicit terms that she would not visit the White House if the team were invited. Alex Morgan, who tied Rapinoe with six goals and three assists in the tournament (Rapinoe led in minutes-per-goal), won the Silver Boot. Dutch goalie Sari van Veenendaal claimed the Golden Glove as the best goalkeeper in the competition.

The U.S. team, led by coach Jill Ellis, scored 26 goals—a tournament record that also included a 13-0 record win over Thailand in their first game of the tournament—and never fell behind in any of their seven 2019 World Cup matches.

The United States became the first team to reach three consecutive Women's World Cup Finals, and was the first squad to repeat as champs since Germany won titles in 2003 and 2007.
